

Director National Injury Claims

Are you empathetic to the customers' needs in an injury claim? Are you able to keep that perspective front and centre while effectively engaging and leading our regional teams' of professionals through changes to how business operates?

SGI CANADA is evolving how service is provided to our customers. If this sounds like a challenge that peaks your interest, we'd like you to apply to join our management team as the Director of National Injury Claims in Regina. With a focus on ensuring delivery of service excellence while managing, monitoring and ensuring quality control for injury claims, this role is accountable for evaluating and recommending process changes. We need a strong leader who champions change; someone who provides guidance, direction and expertise to regions on complex injury claims. Your ability to apply consistent claims handling policies and process in a national landscape will ensure a caring and equitable experience is provided to all of our customers.

Considering the opportunities this new position can provide to develop your skill set and add real business value as we grow to be a major Canadian insurance company, you are ready to be the voice for National Injury Claims.
