Ethics in Everyday Practice: Dealing With Your Client

We are delighted to be bringing our popular Sidebar Social Series to North Battleford. As with previous sessions, this program will offer an opportunity to gain some practical knowledge on a relevant topic from a panel of judges and an experienced senior practitioner. The casual setting involves a CPD presentation with a generous question period accompanied by snacks, beverages and some time for networking.

Don't miss out on this unique event!

This session is dedicated to an in-depth discussion of the ethical considerations encountered in everyday practice and will focus specifically on the issues at hand when dealing with clients. A panel of judges representing all three levels of court in Saskatchewan and a successful senior practitioner will discuss ten key ethical concepts to consider when dealing with clients, such as possession of evidence, advertising, and dealing with complaints.

Practical and useful advice and materials will be shared by the panel as they look to generate conversation and engage with attendees. Participation is the focus of this session and there will be ample time for interaction and specific questions posed to our panel.

Registration is limited to 30 participants– register early to secure your spot!
