

Annual General Meeting

Training Lawyers for the 21st Century: The Future of CPLED

Join us for an informative presentation about the changes coming to the Canadian Centre for Professional Legal Education (CPLED) program. The new program will combine interactive online learning with in-person workshops and simulations. Dr. Kara Mitchelmore, CEO of CPLED, will walk you through the exciting new CPLED journey. Please come prepared for an interactive presentation as your input will help to shape the training for future lawyers.

The next iteration of CPLED will take the best of the existing program and make it better. This means creating a seamless student experience from that first information session about bar admission in law school to the moment that the requirements to be called to the bar have been met. Students will experience a best-in-class program that integrates face to face instruction with an online simulated law firm experience, allowing students to practically apply professional competencies multiple times along the way.

The new program will be standardized, based on a refreshed and expanded competency profile developed and delivered by experts, that ensures the same level of quality regardless of where the student takes the course. Catering to its diverse stakeholders, CPLED will create flexibility in scheduling, and one point of contact throughout a centralized organization. This is the new CPLED.

Don't miss out on the opportunity to ask questions about this new initiative. Register early to secure your spot!
