

Law Society of Saskatchewan Continuing Professional Development

Conducting Efficient Litigation within the New QB Rules

This unique and important opportunity has been spearheaded by The Honourable Chief Justice M.D. Popescul who has the following comments:

“A critical component of the 'Access to Justice' solution is to teach lawyers how to conduct litigation efficiently so that they can obtain an acceptable result for their client when the other side is unreasonable, unwilling to settle or where one's legal case is so good that one ought not compromise. This seminar will focus on practical tips from experienced counsel and judges and will include guidance on how the “new” Rules of Court can be used to advantage.”

We are delighted to be welcoming an esteemed and accomplished faculty to guide us through this comprehensive course on Family Law and Civil Litigation files from the moment they are opened to trial. The common theme of designing and organising your own unique system in order to be more efficient and innovative will carry through each section as we move through the Beginning, Middle and End of the life of the file.

We will begin at the beginning as our Faculty discuss, among other things, managing client expectations, partial representation, and mediation. We will then move to the mid-life of a file as our panel share their experience and expertise on issues such as dedicated case management judges, applications to strike, and when interim applications are necessary. Finally we will move to a discussion of summary trials, document books, and the running of an efficient trial.

Don't miss out on this vital day of CPD programming for all litigators!
